

The Ikat Weaving Technique

Ikat is one of the oldest forms of textile dyeing techniques in the world, still used widely in many countries such as India, Indonesia, and Guatemala. To achieve this unique effect, artisans meticulously bind off certain sections of thread and dye it before weaving it into fabric, usually numerous times with different colors. After wove, the fabric presents unusual patterns and color combinations, ready to decorate your home as a work of art.