

Supporting his Family

Philip works with Nyabigena Soapstone Carvers Cooperative in Kenya and has been carving for 18 years. He and his wife have six children who are all able to attend school due to his income from soapstone carving. He has also purchased a cow with income saved from his work, and selling milk offers supplemental income for between soapstone craft orders. Philip loves carving and the fact that it has given him a reliable way to support his family. He hopes his children will succeed in school and also secure good work for themselves.
