

“I am proud that I don’t need to ask my husband for money anymore; I make my own!”

-Saru Subedi

Saru lives in Kirtipur, Nepal with her husband, daughter (pictured) and son. Before working for KTS she ran a small tea shop, but closed it when she found better opportunity with knitting. Saru’s husband works as a painter and work has become inconsistent for him since the earthquakes in 2015. The family is glad to have fair and steady income from Saru’s beautiful skill.
