

“Since the start of my employment my future looks brighter than ever. I have goals, I want to go back to school to become a certified addictions counselor and to make a difference in the lives of troubled youth. Being proud of myself is a new feeling for me.”

-Heaven, Women's Bean Project, USA

The Women's Bean Project in Denver provides job opportunities and skill trainings to help disadvantaged women build independence. Many of the women are single mothers living in poverty, and many of them are working hard to recover from substance abuse and incarceration.
